PREFACE

Under the rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Government Operations has as one of its functions the duty of studying intergovernmental relations between the United States and the States and municipalities. This responsibility has been delegated by the Committee to the Intergovernmental Relations Subcommittee.

At the present time, the subcommittee has before it the Report of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. The Commission was created by an act of Congress in 1953 (Public Law 109, 83d Cong., 1st sess.) for the purpose of studying and clearly defining the proper role of the National Government in relation to the States and their political subdivisions. Its report was submitted to the President in June 1955 for transmittal to the Congress.

The subcommittee, in preparing for a thorough study of the Commission's recommendations, found the need for an up-to-date bibliography covering important literature in the field of intergovernmental relations. The Library of Congress was called upon to prepare a bibliography that would meet this need.

This is one of a series of documents which the subcommittee will issue in connection with its study of the report of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and in its continuing study of intergovernmental problems.

L. H. Fountain,
Chairman, Intergovernmental Relations Subcommittee.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS,
LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE SERVICE,
Washington 25, D. C., July 20, 1956.

Hon. L. H. FOUNTAIN,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations,
Committee on Government Operations,
United States House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. FOUNTAIN: It is with pleasure that we transmit to you the bibliography on Intergovernmental Relations in the United States prepared at your request. We feel it an honor that you have thought this worthy of publication.

The time factor, created largely by the approaching adjournment of Congress, has prevented the kind of rechecking for omissions and accuracy at the publication stage, which would normally have been undertaken, and indulgence in this connection is urged. We would appreciate it very much, however, if resulting errors or omissions might be brought to our attention. It is hoped that, in spite of any deficiencies that may still exist, the bibliography will prove to be useful, now and in the years ahead.

The work of preparing the bibliography was entrusted to W. Brooke Graves, Chief of the Government Division, Legislative Reference Service. The basic material was contained in a bibliography prepared by him for the use of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

Sincerely yours,

ERNEST S. GRIFFITH, Director.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This is a selected bibliography; out of a voluminous literature, the effort has been made to select the more significant items—books, reports, monographs, and articles by persons (or organizations) of established reputation. In this respect it is an outgrowth of more than 30 years of work in American government, during which special attention has been given throughout to problems in the field of intergovernmental relations.

This version of the bibliography is, in a sense, a third edition. The first compilation, under the same title, was prepared as a rush job in the fall of 1953 to serve as a working tool for the use of the members of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and its professional staff. Several hundred copies of this compilation (73 pages, mimeographed) were distributed during the life of the Commission. To the extent that time permitted, this original version was revised and enlarged at the close of 1954; 250 copies of this version (207 pages, mimeographed) were distributed by the Commission shortly before it passed out of existence on June 30, 1955. These copies went mainly to libraries throughout the country.

Both of these earlier versions carried brief annotations or descriptive notes for many of the entries. In this, the present edition, it has been necessary to omit virtually all of these in order to conserve space. Some entries of relatively minor importance have been omitted altogether, but in the process of further revision, some new items have been inserted so that, as of the date indicated below, the work is as nearly up to date as is practicable at this time. As a matter of policy, both to conserve space and to avoid the confusion resulting from repetitive entries, such entries have been held at a minimum. Exceptions have been made only in the cases of important items (such as, for instance, the publications of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations) whose titles and subject matter coverage are such as to require duplicate entries.—W. Brooke Graves, Chief, Government Division.
